Boylan Companies CEO Named to ECU Foundation Board

(Raleigh, N.C.)— Boylan Companies, a local leading organization providing a seamless range of comprehensive real estate services, is proud to announce that its CEO M. Dustin Field “Dusty” has been named to the 2009 East Carolina University Foundation. In his role as director, Field will provide insight into the foundation’s operations as it works to support ECU’s advancement and development.

“As a Pirate alumni, I can’t think of a better way to contribute to my alma mater,” said Mr. Field, CEO of Boylan Companies. “As I serve alongside fellow leaders in the community, I look forward to drawing from my experiences as a former student and businessman to advance the goals of both the ECU Foundation and East Carolina University.”

Dusty Field is a graduate of East Carolina University and was one of nine new directors named to serve on the 2009 ECU Foundation board. As an entrepreneur for almost two decades, he brings valuable insight, inspiration, energy and guidance into each new business venture. He has founded a number of different ventures, including the country’s fifth largest ATM service provider, along with Tobacco Road Cellars winery in California, Boylan Companies and Openmyvideo.com; each has resulted in success. During 2005, Mr. Field was awarded the Top 40 under 40 Award, a prestigious award that honors the most promising young business people in the Triangle.

About ECU Foundation

The East Carolina University Foundation Inc., is a dynamic, forward-looking, volunteer led, tax exempt organization that plays a critical role in advancing East Carolina University. This body cultivates friends, raises, manages and distributes private resources to benefit the university, its students and its academic and research programs; provides positive public advocacy for the university; and ensures funding for the “Margin of Excellence” that defines East Carolina University today and in the future.
